CONNELLVILLE, AGLOW WITH PATRIOTISM, WILL TURN OUT IN MONSTER FLAG DAY PARADE

Tribute Paid National Emblem Never Before So Pronounced Here.

THOUSANDS TO MARCH IN LINE

Four Thousand Flags Will be Distributed: Parade to Form on South Side; Automobiles Will Make Impressive Showing; Chorus to Sing.

Connellsville is all aglow with patriotism and reverence for the Star Spangled Banner on this, the 139th anniversary of the adoption of the Stars and Stripes as the American emblem. The movement for a big observance of this national festival, started Monday, has gained such impetus that the promoters themselves are amazed. An epidemic of patriotism has swept the community and there are indications that one of the biggest parades in the history of the city will be held tonight. Everybody, big and little, regardless of race, color or religion, has become imbued with the spirit.

Connellsville is covered with the national colors. Everywhere there are flags. Old Glory is flying to the breeze from almost every house in the city. The street cars have flags from each trolley pole; few, if any, flat nests are empty and men, women and children are wearing tiny emblems.

A meeting of patriotic citizens interested in the parade was held at City Hall this morning and additional plans were outlined. Captain L. Dunn and R. O. Goodwin, who started out Monday to organize the parade, reported that splendid progress had been made. Four thousand flags will be distributed to marchers in the parade. These will be given out on the library lawn only to those who appear in line. A committee of young men is in charge of this end of the affair. Sixty high school graduates will be aides in the parade and the high school chorus will assist in the singing on the high school lawn. All of the aides will have suitable badges.

Provisional plans for the parade have been completed. The formation, route, and other details were decided upon this morning at a meeting at the city hall, and the committee is confidently expecting that the celebration will be a huge success.

The marchers will assemble on the South Side, the right resting on Crawford avenue, the left on South Pittsburg street. The vehicles, including the automobile section and the floats, will form on Pittsburg street south of Green, and will follow the marchers in the parade.

The route of march is as follows: North on Pittsburg to Green, west to Johnson, south to Fayette, then south on Pittsburg to Main, west on Main to Western Maryland station, then to Carnegie library grounds and disband.

The invitation to march is extended to everyone who wants to show his patriotism. The parade will form promptly at 7 o'clock and people stationed along the streets will distribute flags to those going out to parade. Four thousand small flags will be given away.

Captain Joseph C. Herwick of Company D, will be chief marshal, and among the organizations expected to march are the Boy Scouts, police, city officials, Connellsville Military Band, high school boys, gardeners and cadets, firemen, and all the fraternal and patriotic orders.

John Davis will lead the singing on the lawn. Members of the high school chorus are requested especially to be present and help render the patriotic lyrics. Boys of the high school graduating class, who will act as aides, will meet at the school at 8:30.

Captain E. Dunn, who has been working on the parade plans, this morning expressed the hope that this Flag Day celebration may become an annual affair. The town is aglow with flags today, and a spirit of patriotism is prevalent.

Six handsome new flags were received by School Board today and unfurled from the mast of one of the school buildings.

The Second National Bank Building is aglow with colors each window on the second and third floors having a large flag of the same size displayed. Superintendent B. L. Berg's scheme of decoration is much admired.

Every West Penn street car had a second-sized flag on each of the trolley poles.

The members of William F. Kuriz Post G. A. R. will assemble at 7:30 at the reviewing stand, Carnegie library. Commander W. F. Clark announced this morning.

Charles H. Gately will take moving pictures of the parade.

Washington was brilliantly decorated for the occasion. It was a holiday for under an executive order issued by the President all government employees were excused from work and many stores were closed. The celebration was planned in part as a response to a proclamation issued by the President calling upon the people of the nation to celebrate Flag Day this year with special ceremonies.

The parade was planned as a strictly non-partisan affair and was suggested by a Republican newspaper of Washington. Volunteering to participate in it were employees of many stores and shops, members of patriotic, philanthropic, religious and social organizations, many of the city's leading business men, Cabinet officers, judges, school children and members of the Senate and House.

COKE COMPANIES JOIN TO ESTABLISH A RESCUE STATION

At a Central Point for the Lower Connellsville Region.

WILL BE LOCATED AT ORIENT

Nine Companies From a Group Which Will Erect, Equip and Maintain It Will Secure Substantial Reduction in Compensation Insurance Rates.

To further promote all accepted means and methods of safety first, and in order to obtain material reduction in compensation insurance rates, nine operating coke companies of the Lower Connellsville region have taken concerted action in the establishment and maintenance of a district rescue station. This will be located at Orient, a point fairly central in the territory in which the interested companies constituting the group are located. These comprise Orient Coke Company, Tower Hill, Connellsville Coke Company, Thompson-Connellsville Coke Company, Connellsville Central Coke Company, Struthers Coal & Coke Company, Briar Hill Coke Company, Union Connellsville Coke Company, Taylor Coal & Coke Company and Fayette Coke Company.

The companies in this group will jointly bear the expense of erecting, equipping and maintaining the station, including the building, which is to be a frame structure, an expenditure of approximately $2,500 will be made. The rescue appliances to be installed will consist of ten sets of breathing apparatus, one high pressure oxygen pump, five oxygen supply tanks, measuring bags, water gauges, air meter for testing apparatus, pulleys, ladders and other devices necessary to the complete equipment of a station of this character.

Each of the companies in the combination will train a crew in rescue work so that each member will be familiar with the duties required in cases of emergency. A certain number of men will be on duty at the rescue station at all times to answer any call that may be made. These men will be members of the general crews and will be relieved at stated intervals by others. While on duty at the rescue station they will receive a regular wage and be carried on the pay rolls of the companies.

Under the regulations of the State Compensation Bureau the establishment of a rescue station, according to the standard and on the plans approved by the bureau, entitles all companies operating within a three-mile radius, and sharing in the maintenance of the station, to a reduction of 25 cents per $100 of pay roll in the rates for compensation insurance. Contracts have been closed for the apparatus for the station which is expected will be on the ground by

FIREWORKS ARE IGNITED DURING DEMONSTRATION, BUT DAMAGE IS SLIGHT

While H. C. Carpenter, manager of the Tri-State Candy Company, was demonstrating "sparklers" to a customer at the sample room of the company on Peach street, about 4:15 o'clock yesterday afternoon, a quantity of other illuminating fireworks became ignited. The fire that resulted damaged the interior of the room to the extent of about $150, but it was quickly put out by Mr. Carpenter with chemical extinguishers.

The fire department was called and the truck made a quick run. The services of the firemen were not needed, though smoke was still pouring from the room as the truck rolled up. A Miss Donahue, employed in the packing department, suffered a sprained ankle when she was accidentally pushed out of the door where the wagon load to the ground about five feet below. She lives in Brookvale.

OVERTURNED FREIGHT CARS BLOCK TRACKS AT STATION

Passenger Traffic is Interfered With When the Tracks Are Blocked Some Hours.

Traffic over the Baltimore & Ohio tracks near the passenger station was tied up last evening when three freight cars near the rear of a west-bound train left the rails about 4 o'clock. The cars fell against a train standing on the eastbound tracks trying up both tracks. The eastbound tracks were cleared at 5:40, but trains did not go through west until 7 o'clock.

The wreck was caused when a car rolled violently and overturned. The cars were all empty, the freight being composed of refrigerator cars returning from the east. The first car to leave the rails was about the twelfth from the rear. Two others also toppled over before the airbrakes stopped the train.

The roof cars were taken to the scene but on account of the three cars being tilted against an eastbound train on the opposite tracks could not work easily. After the cars were righted it was an easy matter to lift them clear of the rails.

Passenger trains Nos. 51 and 15 were run through the yards. The first left on time, being transferred in the main line below the station. Trains Nos. 56 and 2 were delayed outside of the block below the station, not being able to get in until 5:40, when the eastbound track was opened.

School Picnic Big. Nine West Penn crews from the coke region were at McKeesport yesterday handing the crowds that attended Danny O'Neil's school picnic at Olympia Park. The outing was the largest ever held.

Contractor Schuchke Here. Contractor George Schuchke, who is to build the Crawford School on Second street, spent yesterday in the city arranging to sublet contracts for excavating and foundation building.

RACE IS CLOSE

Three Hundred Votes Separate West Virginia gubernatorial Aspirants.

WHEELING, W. Va., June 14.—With only 300 votes separating A. A. Lilly and Ira E. Robinson for the Republican nomination for governor, and further changes forecast in the counties where the recount is in progress, the situation growing out of the statewide primary of June 6 created additional interest yesterday.

Counties heard from during the night so changed the result as to give Lilly 59,241 and Robinson 58,541. Each candidate gave out a statement at Charleston claiming the nomination and denying that he knew anything about a movement for a compromise candidate. Ten counties only have certified the returns of the election to the Charleston authorities.

Wheatley is 25 years old, five feet six inches tall, weighs 110 pounds, has small squinty eyes and a small red birthmark on each lower eyelid. He served six years in the navy, sings and dances and may be found on the vaudeville stage.

Telephone Wire Stretches From Coliseum to the White House.

OPENING SESSION FALLS FLAT

Little Interest Manifested in the Proceedings: Vice Presidential Room Collapsed With Word from Washington and Bryan is Also Blasted.

By Associated Press.

COLISEUM, ST. LOUIS, June 14.—With the keynote of "Americanism and Peace, Preparedness and Prosperity," the Democratic National Convention began its first session shortly after noon today with not a single element in sight to disturb the re-nomination of President Wilson and Vice President Marshall.

When National Chairman McCombs called the convention to order, 12,000 delegates, alternates and spectators packed the Coliseum to the roof. Members of the national committee, members of the Wilson Cabinet and party leaders from all over the country had places on the platform.

Vice Presidential booms wailed by President Wilson's direct words that he desired the re-nomination of Vice President Marshall were brought to the convention hall, but only as favorite son compliments.

When National Committeeman McCombs had called the convention to order, Rev. Dr. Lee offered the prayer. The next business was a reading of the call by the secretary, J. Bruce Kremer.

Former Governor Glynn of New York was next with the keynote speech.

Down under the speakers' stand direct telephone and telegraph wires to the White House carried momentary reports of the proceedings.

All prospects of a fight in the convention had gone glimmering over night with W. J. Bryan's announcement that he did not propose to press certain planks before the resolutions committee.

"We have entered this hall as Democrats; let us deliberate as Americans," declared Mr. Glynn in sounding the keynote. "It is the business of this convention, representing every section of the United States, speaking for every race in America, to send forth the message to all the world that will leave no room for doubt."

He declared the President stood with Washington, Adams and Grant, who had preserved peace with honor. "For selfish purposes," he declared, "others may cry for a policy of blood and iron, but the President has acted on the belief that the leader of a nation who plunges his people into an unnecessary war, like Pontius Pilate, vainly washes his hands of innocent blood while the earth quakes and the heavens are darkened, and thousands give up the ghost."

"If Washington was right; if Jefferson was right, then the President is right today," he declared.

The first real demonstration was by Mr. McCombs when he said in his speech, "The Elephant is dead, the Moose is dead; long live the American Eagle."

Those who looked for clear weather for the convention were a bit disappointed to learn that conditions were uncertain. There was, however, one thing virtually certain and that was that it was warm enough to make the closely packed crowd in the Coliseum swelter.

Nearly everybody who went to the convention from the eastern part of St. Louis journeyed by way of Washington street, which for two hours before the convention convened was transformed into a "golden lane." On either side of the broad avenue stood woman suffragists, arrayed in yellow. They stood or sat on stools a few feet apart and did not utter a word to the passing throng making their way to the convention hall. The golden lane stretched for 12 blocks from the hotel district to the Coliseum and the mute demonstration was expected by its originators to influence the delegates in the matter of a declaration of suffrage.

The delegates and alternates had seats on the main floor arranged like a huge oblong wedge with the broad side toward the platform. Their seats were jammed together, arrangements for both delegates and spectators being much more congested than at either convention in Chicago. The only picture of President Wilson was on the speaker's stand. It was a small reproduction of a photograph on a shield with a background of the flag and bore the inscription "America First."

The coliseum filled rapidly just before noon, some delay in opening the doors to spectators preventing an earlier influx. The hands accompanied the delegations to the hall but were not allowed inside. Few delegations came in all together and there was little excitement or cheering during the half hour preceding the opening of the convention. Motion picture machines and cameras were placed at every vantage point.

Because of the extreme heat, many of the delegates began removing their coats and the convention soon promised to be a coatless body.

FLAG DAY INSPIRES THE PUBLICATION OF A POEM

Verses of Comrade J. R. Balsley Composed in 1903, Especially Appropriate Now.

The big celebration of Flag Day by patriotic residents of Connelville today recalls to mind the inspiring verses written by Comrade James Robinson Balsley of Connelville back in 1903. "Our Nation's Ensign" won much praise, both for its brilliant patriotic sentiment and its literary excellence.

The prologue of the poem, in blank verse, follows:
The American Flag
Thirteen stripes, alternate
Red and White; a square of Blue, in an upper corner,
Studded with stars.
No words, no border, no fringe,
No ornamentation of any kind, save the Luster in the bright colors of
Which it is made.
Fold it up and lay it away
And it has no more significance
Than any other piece of goods at
Like this. Nail it to a wall, and Plant it to the breeze, and Seventy million people will Latter in the bright colors of
Which it is made.
The poem concludes with these lines:
That Star Spangled Banner, the Flag of the Free
Shall float over the Land and shall float
Over the Sea
An emblem of Freedom, it ever shall Wave
Till there's not on this earth one downtrodden slave.

Astonishing Power of Iron To Give Strength to Broken Down Nervous People

Physician Says Ordinary Nourished Iron
Will Increase Strength of Deficient
Folk 200 Per Cent. in Two Weeks' Time in Many Instances.

NEW YORK, N. Y.—In a recent discourse Dr. E. Sauer, a well known specialist who has studied widely both in this country and Europe, said: "If you were to make an actual blood test on all people who are ill you would probably be greatly astonished at the lack of iron. The moment iron is supplied all their multitude of dangerous symptoms disappear. Without iron the blood at once loses the power to change food into living tissue, and therefore nothing you eat does you any good; you don't get the strength out of it. Your food merely passes through your system like corn through a mill with the rollers so wide apart that the mill can't grind. As a result of this continuous blood and nerve starvation, people become generally weakened, nervous and all run down, and frequently develop all sorts of conditions. One is too thin; another is burdened with unwholesome fat; some are so weak they can barely walk; some think they have dyspepsia, kidney or liver trouble; some can't sleep at night; others are sleepy and tired all day; some are nervous and irritable; some skiny and bloodless, but all lack physical power and endurance. In such cases it is worse than foolishness to take stimulating medicines or narcotic drugs, which only whip up your flagging vital powers for the moment, maybe at the expense of your life later on. No matter what any one tells you, if you are not strong and well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary nourished iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see for yourself how much you have gained. I have seen dozens of nervous, run-down people who were ailing all the time, and even triple their strength and endurance and entirely got rid of their symptoms of dyspepsia, liver and other troubles in from ten to fourteen days' time simply by taking iron in the proper form, and this, after they had in some cases been doctoring for months without obtaining any benefit. You can talk as you please about all the wonders wrought by new remedies, but when you come down to hard facts there is nothing like good old iron to put color in your cheeks and good, sound, healthy flesh on your bones. It is also a great nerve and stomach strengthener and the best blood builder in the world. The only trouble was that the old forms of inorganic iron, like tincture of iron, iron acetate, etc., often ruined people's teeth, upset their stomachs and were not assimilated, and for these reasons they frequently did more harm than good. But with the discovery of the newer forms of organic iron all this has been overcome. Nourished iron, for example, is pleasant to take, does not injure the teeth and is almost immediately beneficial. NOTE—The manufacturers of Nourished Iron have such unbounded confidence in its potency that they authorize the announcement that they will forfeit $100.00 to any charitable institution if they cannot take any man or woman under their treatment and increase their strength 200 per cent or over in four weeks' time, provided they have no serious organic trouble. Also they will refund your money if any case in which Nourished Iron does not at least double your strength in ten days' time. It is dispensed in this city by A. A. Clarke and all other druggists.—Adv.

HOW THIN PEOPLE CAN PUT ON FLESH

Thin men and women—that big, hearty, filling dinner you ate last night. What became of all the fat-producing nourishment it contained? You haven't gained in weight one ounce. That food passed from your body like unburned coal through an open grate. The material was there, but your food doesn't work and stick, and the plain truth is you hardly get enough nourishment from your meals to pay for the cost of cooking. This is true of thin folks the world over. Your nutritive organs, your functions of assimilation, are probably sadly out of gear and need reconstruction.

Cut out the foolish foods and funny sawdust diets. Cut out everything but the meals you are eating and eat with every one of these single Sargol tablets. In two weeks note the difference. Let the scales be the judge. Five to eight good solid pounds of healthy, "stay-there" fat may be the net result. Sargol aims to charge weak, stagnant blood with millions of fresh new red blood corpuscles—to give the blood the carrying power to deliver every ounce of fat-making material in your food to every part of your body. Sargol, too, mixes with your food, to prepare it for the blood in an easily assimilated form. Thin people tell how they have gained all the way from 10 to 25 pounds a month while taking Sargol and say that the new flesh stays put. Sargol tablets are a careful combination of six of the best assimilative elements known to chemistry. They come 10 tablets to a package, are pleasant, harmless and inexpensive, and all good druggists in this vicinity sell them subject to an absolute guarantee of weight increase or money back as found in every large package. —Adv.

REPORTS SHOW CIRCULATION BUREAU IS FLOURISHING NOW

Convention is Held in Chicago of Organization Which Verifies Newspaper Claims.

The 1916 convention of the Audit Bureau of Circulations of which The Courier is a member, was held in Chicago this week, and the reports received by it from its directors and officers showed that the association which is composed of publishers, advertisers and advertising agents, is in a flourishing condition and its growth during the last year has been highly satisfactory to the membership. The Audit Bureau of Circulations is an organization to which newspapers, magazines, farm papers and class, trade and technical journals cannot belong unless they are willing to tell what their circulation is, and not only to tell what it is but to swear to it, and swear not only as to the quantity of circulation but as to how it is distributed. Low it is obtained, how much is paid and how much is free, and what proportion of it is in arrears. But all this is not enough to prove that publications have the circulation they claim. After the publishers have stated and sworn to what circulation they have and to all the other facts advertisers want to know, the Audit Bureau through trained expert examiners makes a searching examination to find out if what the publishers state and swear to is correct in all particulars.

The public is familiar with the national bank examinations made by the Federal Government and is alive to the protection it is assured through Federal examination of the banks.

The principle involved in the Audit Bureau of Circulations is the same. The advertiser and advertising agent derive the same security in investing their money in advertising in publications examined and certified by the Audit Bureau of Circulations that the public is assured by the Federal Bank examination law.

This is for the protection of advertisers and advertising agents against publications that conceal the character or misrepresent the quantity of their circulation. It is also for the protection of the honest publisher who might be put at a disadvantage in competing with one less scrupulous.

The Chicago Convention just held was the third since the Audit Bureau was organized in 1911. The meeting was attended by nearly three hundred of the publishers, advertisers and agents of the United States and Canada who are members and the membership represented on a call of the roll either in person or by proxy was 621 out of a total membership of 1,175. Almost 60% of the membership was thus represented at the meeting.

At the Theatres.

SOISSON THEATRE.

"A SON OF THE IMMORTALS"—The attraction advertised for the Soisson Theatre today, is J. Warren Kerrigan in "A Son of the Immortals," a Bluebird Photoplay of sensational heat, replete with thrills and excitement. The plot conveys the action of a Yankee suddenly elevated to rule over a kingdom, and the manner in which he breaks down conventions and casts traditions to the wind strikes up the politicians and leads to many sensational episodes. The final outcome is a triumph for the American spirit, and the King gets away with his problems in a manner to stir the enthusiasm of American audiences. Kerrigan has never been entrusted with a role in moving pictures that is so well suited to his dashing style of performance. "Two Mothers," is a dramatic two reel drama of operatic life featuring Dorothy Davenport. It is an interesting tale of how a mother tries to get her boy back from his stepmother. The stepmother realizes what she had done for the boy and will not give him up. The boy believing that his mother is dead, goes to the woman who is his mother and asks her to help them which she finally does. "Brother Jim" is a 10-act drama with Thomas Jefferson and Louisa Baskette in the cast. It is the story of a Scotch farmer who is left alone with his little son and daughter. The boy when grown up goes to the city but after many trials returns to the old farm. "It Can't Be True" is a Powers comedy with Eric Shields and Marcela Moore in the cast. Eric owed a five year laundry bill and his rent. But this did not stop him from cooking over the gas tap and also making eyes at the landlady's daughter.

ter. Tomorrow the popular actress Pearl White appears in the thrilling two reel serial "The Iron Claw."

GLOBE THEATRE.

"WHEN NIGHT IS RIGHT"—Featuring Henry King, is being presented today at the Globe. The production is a three part Knickerbocker Star feature, and is intensely interesting. Thomas Dorgan, president of the Commonwealth Steel Car Company, rules over the wage earners, while his daughter Elsie is a friend of the wage earners. Durken receives a telegram stating that Jack Crawford, representative of the workers, is to arrive in the city to plead his case and is worried over the result. Durken refuses to see Rev. Townsend, who is soliciting funds for the foreign mission and learns later from his friend, Congressman Bradley that Townsend is an impostor. A book is handed to Durken by his secretary suggesting the use of religion to hold in check the workers. Crawford arrives in time to save Elsie's chauffeur from an angry mob of tenement women, who are intent on mobbing him for accidentally running down a little child who was playing in the street. Crawford is unable to hold the crowd in check. Townsend happens along and the crowd respecting his grand disperses. Elsie and Crawford's friendship ripens into love and following her father's death Elsie finds solace in Crawford's love.

Facts Versus Fallacies

FACT is a real state of things. FALLACY is an apparently genuine but really illogical statement or argument.

ALABAMA is a Prohibition State. It was made Prohibition by its Legislature, and this, too, in the face of the FACT that the people of Alabama have three times gone on record at the polls, as opposed to Prohibition.

BUT the Legislature made Alabama "dry," and it was confidently said that the citizens of Alabama would pay less taxes in consequence—that an era of prosperity would come—and that the land would be overflowing with milk and honey instead of with alcoholic beverages.

WHAT has, in reality, come to pass is this: When Governor Jelks of Alabama, anti-prohibitionist, retired from office eight years ago—in 1907—he left a surplus of $1,900,000 in the State treasury, and with all outstanding obligations paid. His successor was a prohibitionist, and before the prohibitionist Governor relinquished his reins of office, the surplus had disappeared, and in its place was a deficit of more than a million dollars in the revenues of the State.

THE present Legislature has already made appropriations that are $3,000,000 in excess of the revenues for the present fiscal year, and Governor Henderson says that prohibition cannot possibly last through another Legislature!

HERE then is shown the wide difference between prohibition's Promise and Performance. It is a common FALLACY to promise that prohibition means lower taxes and increased prosperity, when it is a FACT—as shown by Alabama's figures—that seven years ago Alabama as a "wet" State had a surplus of $1,900,000, and today, as a "dry" State has a deficit of $3,000,000.

PROHIBITION has cost Alabama $5,000,000 in seven years' time!

WHY SUFFER WITH BACKACHE, KIDNEYS OR RHEUMATISM NOW?

Letter Tells of Long Looked-for Description.

Dear Readers—I am making a personal appeal to those of you who are bothered with kidney and bladder trouble, that you give up the use of harsh salts or alcoholic kidney medicines and in their place take the treatment of "Annie." I have taken many of Dr. Pierce's medicines for the past twenty-five years, and I can tell you that I suffered with kidney trouble for some years. I recently heard of the latest discovery of Doctor Pierce, namely, his "Annie's" Kidney Tablets. After using same I am completely cured of my kidney trouble. I recommend heartily all sufferers to Dr. Pierce, for what he has done for me cannot be estimated too highly. A doctor pronounced me a well preserved woman for my age, all due, I believe, to Dr. Pierce's medical aid.

Yours very truly,
Mrs. MELINDA MILLER.

NOTE: You've all undoubtedly heard of the famous Dr. Pierce and his well-known medicines. Well, this prescription is one that has been successfully used for many years by the physicians and specialists at Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, of Buffalo, N. Y., for kidney, bladder and urinary ailments arising from disorders of the kidneys and bladder, such as backache, weak back, rheumatism, dropsy, constipation of the bowels, inflammation of the bladder, scalding urine, and urinary troubles.

Up to this time, "Annie" has not been on sale to the public, but by the persuasion of many patients and the increased demand for this wonderful healing Tablet, Doctor Pierce has finally decided to put it into the drug stores of this country within immediate reach of all sufferers.

Simply ask for Doctor Pierce's Annie Tablets. There can be no imitation. Every package of "Annie's" is signed by Dr. Pierce. It is the only one of the kind on the package just as you do Dr. Pierce's Favorite Pink Pills, the ever-famous "Ivory" and "Blue" Pills, and Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, proven by years to be the greatest general tonic and reconstructive for any use.

DOUBLE TRACKING OF THE SHEEPSKIN TALKED ONCE MORE

Rush of Traffic Indicates
That B. & O. Must Soon
Get Busy

EXTRA ENGINES PUT TO WORK

Camel Backs From Monongah Division
Being Used; Long Trains Take as Many as Three Engines at Times;
New Bridges for Outcrop Notes.

Double tracking the Sheepskin branch of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad is the uppermost subject in the minds of the railroaders at the Conneltsville division at the present time. Coal traffic of the Baltimore & Ohio over this line has increased 150 to 200 loads a day and the line is laying a lot keeping the road clear of congestion. When the Western Maryland begins to haul coal out of West Virginia it will be impossible to use the branch unless another track is laid.

Officials here are of the opinion that they will not receive any information of the plans for the double track until they are completed, most of this work being done at Pittsburgh and Baltimore before word is given out here.

One thing that is in line with the double tracking movement is the repairing and strengthening of bridges at Outcrop, about a mile from Southfield. There are two bridges at this place about 75 yards apart. Both will be replaced, probably with concrete arches. When the new bridges are put in they will be made stronger on account of the heavy tonnage and wider in order that a second track can be laid across.

The increase of tonnage on the Sheepskin has been caused by the opening of the lake. Ten camel back engines have been taken from the Monongah division to be used temporarily on the Sheepskin. A number of additional crews have been put on that branch also. When traffic slows up the crews will be returned to other runs. Trains that are now coming over the branch are so long and heavy that two and three engines are necessary to move them.

HEADLIGHT FLASHES.

Walter Haines, night chief dispatcher is working as day chief during the absence of Joseph Hilling. M. J. Kerrigan is acting as night chief.

E. A. Pack, general superintendent of the Baltimore & Ohio was in town yesterday for a short time on his way to Cumberland.

The half holidays for the clerical force of the Baltimore & Ohio offices here have begun. Each Saturday the clerks that can be spared are released at 1 o'clock.

F. F. Robinson, an engineer on the Pittsburgh division has returned to work after being off three months on account of illness.

Annual repairs are being made to the crossover of the Pennsylvania railroad at the West Penn Station tracks on Eighth street, West Side.

Embarkments have been declared by the Baltimore & Ohio railroad on all points in New England. For a time the embargo was only on Baltimore & Ohio cars but now neither foreign or home cars will be taken in any of the northern ports.

Another Great Crowd Greeted the Great Spiegel

YOUNG MAN AND HIS ASSISTANTS MET A CONTINUOUS
STREAM OF CALLERS AT HIS PRIVATE OFFICE, YOUTH HOUSE.

Hundreds of Testimonials Telling of the Cures that Sangvin, His Blood, Liver, Kidney Remedy is Doing.

MAIL ORDER DEPARTMENT STAMPED WITH ORDERS FROM OUT OF TOWN.

The renowned young man, who has been promising such wonderful things from the use of his New Discovery, undoubtedly showed his audience last night that he was not making any idle boast. Persons reading of his phenomenal work undoubtedly were skeptical in regard to the veracity of the report of the extraordinary work of this young man. As the proof of the pudding is in the eating thereof, so what the eye sees the heart must believe. Anyone attending the lectures and seeing the remarkable demonstrations can readily see why he has become so popular with the people of Conneltsville.

The Great Spiegel's exhibits are attracting large crowds. It was particularly noticed Monday night, the large crowd which stood and listened to Mr. Spiegel, who is conducting the advertising campaign in behalf of his father's remedies, that he did not seem to have hands enough to supply the wants of the people of Conneltsville, for he sold enormous amounts of Dr. Jones' Blood Purifier, which is guaranteed to cure rheumatism, neuralgia, sprains, bruises, paralysis, deafness and bodily aches and pains, and the Sangvin, a remedy for the blood, stomach and kidneys, for nervousness, stomach trouble, indigestion, constipation, biliousness, the run down system and all skin diseases, eczema, salt rheum, erysipelas and others arising from impurities of the blood.

Mr. Spiegel has been of great service to the people here. Testimonials coming in which certify his statement when he made his first appearance, that he was making no idle boast when he proclaimed that he had the greatest discovery of the age.

All day yesterday a continuous crowd poured into his private office, where Mr. Spiegel and his assistants met the callers. The multitude that thronged the room was made up of representatives of almost every class of the city's population. Although the people came in great numbers, the crowd moved quickly and it was evident that many came on the advice of their friends and neighbors; others came to express their thanks for the benefits which they had received. In a few minutes the show started at 7:45 P. M. every night.

side of life predominated; suffering humanity had a large representation. People with bodies racked with pain, victims of stomach trouble for weeks, who have experienced very little rest day or night; young people who should have been enjoying the fullest measure of health and vigor and women in whose burdens of years had been added the affliction of disease, awaited their turn to meet the Great Spiegel.

Some said they had lived for months without hope but had been encouraged by the remarks of others standing in line waiting only to thank Mr. Spiegel for the good work he is doing.

This morning the Great Spiegel received word from G. A. Harvough of Scotland, stating in a letter that his wife has been taking Sangvin for her stomach, liver and pains in the left side of her ovaries. Could not sleep; her eating would not amount to a thing. He writes, "I would not take twenty-five dollars for the good Sangvin and the benefit have done my wife. She had severe pains in her head and left side from female trouble; her ears would ring with pain so she had not had a night's sleep in months. Since taking your Sangvin (she is now on her second bottle) I bought at your show, she has improved wonderfully in appetite, sleep and action of the bowels. Your treatment can be recommended for colds on lungs, tonsillitis and backache."

Many such cases have been received where Mr. Spiegel has done wonder with his remedy and any one afflicted with rheumatism and pain and any constitutional diseases arising from irregularities of the blood, stomach, liver and kidneys, should give these remedies a trial for the success he has had here certainly has proved that his remedies are all that he recommends them for.

Since coming to new location in rear of Youth House, the lot has been jammed with throngs witnessing the grand free show he is giving. This man and his show is the talk of the town. Do not fail to call on him personally at his private rooms for any disease you suffer with. Hours, 10 to 12 P. M. Show starts at 7:45 P. M. every night.

Cortwright's guess had found its mark. He was loaded to break with "front feet" and options and "corners" in the least speculative period he had bought and shorted and bought again, plunging recklessly with the sole object of wringing another hundred thousand out of drying sponge against the time when David Massingale should need it. At first the undertaking seemed easily possible. But with the drying of the speculative sponge it became increasingly difficult. More and more he had been compelled to buy and hold, until now the bare attempt to unload would have started the panic which was only waiting for some leading seller to fire the train.

The sweat stood out in great drops on his forehead when he finally drew a pad of telegraph blanks under his hand and began to write a message. Punctuatingly he composed it, referring often to the notes in his field-book, and printing the words neatly in his accurate, clearly defined handwriting.

When it was finished he translated it laboriously into the department code. But after the copy was made and signed he did not ring at once for a messenger. Instead, he put the two, the original and the cipher, under a paper weight and sat gloomily at them, searching blindly for some alternative to the final act of treachery which would be consummated in the sending of the wire.

Since, by reason of Cortwright's tampering with the envelope people and the railroad, the "Little Susan" had become a locked treasure vault, the engineer, acting upon his own initiative, had tried the law. As soon as he had ascertained that David Massingale had been given sixty days longer to live, solely because the buccaners chose to take his mine rather than his money, Brouillard had submitted the facts in the case to a trusted lawyer friend in the East.

This hope had pulled in two like a frayed cord. Massingale must pay the bank or lose all. Until he had obtained possession of the promissory notes there would be no revenue in which to drive any legal wedge. And even then, unless some pressure could be brought to bear upon the grafters to make them disgorge, there was no chance of Massingale's recovering more than his allotted two-thirds of the stock; in other words, he would still stand committed to the agreement by which he had bound himself to make the grafters a present, in fee simple, of one-third of his mine.

Brouillard had written one more letter to the lawyer. In it he had asked how David Massingale could be most valuably retrained in his rights as the sole owner of the "Little Susan." The answer had come promptly and it was explicit. "Only by the repayment of such sums as had been actually expended in the reorganization and on the betterments for the modernizing machinery and improvements—and the voluntary surrender, by the other parties to the agreement, of the stock in dispute," the lawyer had written; and Brouillard had smiled at the thought of Cortwright voluntarily surrendering anything which was once well within the grasp of his greedy hands.

Failing to start the legal wedge, Brouillard had dipped—also without consulting Massingale—into the matter of land titles. The "Little Susan" was legally patented under the land laws, and Massingale's title, if the mine were located upon government land, was without a law. But on a former reclamation project Brouillard had been brought in contact with some of the curious title litigation growing out of the old Spanish grants; and in at least one instance he had seen a government patent invalidated thereby.

As a man in reasonably close touch with his superior in Washington, the chief of construction knew that there was a Spanish grant involvement which had at one time threatened to at least delay the Niquola project. How it had been settled finally he did not know; but after the legal failure he had written to a man—a college classmate of his own—in the bureau of land statistics, asking for data which would enable him to locate exactly the Niquola touching boundaries of the great Coronado grant. To this letter no reply had as yet been received. Brouillard had cause to know what slowness a simple matter of information can do out of a department bureau. The letter—which, after all, might contain nothing helpful—languished on the way, and the crisis, the turning point, beyond which there could be no redemption in a revival of the speculative craze, had arrived.

Brouillard took up the draft of the Washington telegram and read it over. It was cooler now, and he saw that it was only as it came from the hand of a traitor, who could and would deliberately wreck the train of events it might set in motion, that it became a betrayal. Writing as the commanding officer in the field, he had roasted the facts—facts doubtless well known in the department—the probability that congress would intervene and the hold the opposition would become discouraged and voluntarily withdraw. Would the department place the men and the means instantly at his disposal?

"If I were the honest man I am supposed to be, that is precisely the message I ought to send," he mused reflectively. "It is only as the crooked devil in possession of me will drive me to nullify the effort and make it of no effect that it becomes a crime. And the fact that I can never be sure that the Cortwright gang hasn't the inside track and will not win out in spite of all efforts. That is the touchstone of the whole degrading business. I am afraid Cortwright has the inside track. If I could only get a little clear-sighted daylight on the damnable treachery!"

CHAPTER XX Love's Crucible

Obedient to a sudden impulse, Brouillard thrust the two copies of the telegram under the paper-weight again, sprang up, put on his hat, and left the building. A few minutes later he was on the porch of the stuccoed villa in the Quadajonal road and was saying gravely to the young woman who had been reading in the hammock: "You are staying too closely at home. Get your coat and hat and walk with me up to the 'Little Susan.' It will do you good."

The afternoon was waning and the sun, dipping to the horizon, hung like a huge golden ball over the yellow immensities of the distant Buckskin as they topped the final ascent in the steep trail and went to sit on the steps of the deserted home cabin at the mine.

For a time neither spoke, and the stillness of the air contrasted amazingly to the high mountain silence, which was almost oppressive. Work had been stopped in the mine at the end of the previous week, Massingale declaring, morosely, that until he knew whose ore he was digging he would dig no more. Presumably there was a watchman, but if so he was invisible to the two on the cabin steps, and the high viewpoint was theirs alone.

"How did you know that I have been wanting to come up here once more before everything is changed?" said the girl at length, patting the roughly-hewn log step as if it were a sentient thing to feel the breeze.

"I didn't know it," Brouillard denied. "I only know that I wanted to get out of Gomorrah for a little while, to come up here with you and get the rest of the pit out of my nostrils."

"I know," she rejoined, with the quick comprehension which never failed him. "It is good to be out of it to be up here where we can look down upon it and see it in its true perspective—as a mere little impertinent blot on the landscape. It's only that, after all, Victor. See how the great dam—your work—overhangs it!"

"That is one of the things I hoped I might be able to see if I came here with you," he returned slowly. "But I can't get your point of view, Amy. I shall never be able to get it again."

"You did have it once," she asserted. "Or rather, you had a better one of your own. Has Gomorrah changed it?"

"No, not Gomorrah. I could shut the waste-gates and drown the place to-morrow for all that Mirapolis, or anything in it, means to me. But something has changed the point of view for me past mending, since that first day when we sat here together and looked down upon the beginning of the reclamation construction camp—before Gomorrah was ever thought of."

"I know," she said again. "But that dreadful city is responsible. It has robbed us all, Victor; but you more than any, I'm afraid."

"No," he objected. "Mirapolis has been only a means to an end. The thing that has changed my point of view—my entire life—is love, as I have told you once before."

"Oh, no," she protested gently, rising to take her old place, with her back to the porch post and her hands behind her. And then, still more gently, "That is almost like sacrilege, Victor, for love is sacred."

"I can't help it. Love has made a great sinner of me, Amy; a criminal, if man's laws were as closely meshed as God's."

"I can't believe that," she dissented loyally. "It is true. I have betrayed my trust. Cortwright will make good in all of his despicable schemes. Congress will intervene and the Niquola project will be abandoned."

"Tell me," she begged briefly, and, since he was staring fixedly at the scored slopes of Jack's mountain, he did not see that she caught her lip between her teeth to stop its trembling.

"As you know, I had a debt to pay before I could say 'Come, little girl, let's go and get married.' So I became a stockholder in Cortwright's power company, knowing perfectly well when I consented that the hundred thousand dollars' worth of stock he gave me was a bribe—the price of my silence and noninterference with his greedy schemes."

"But you didn't mean to keep it; you know you couldn't keep it," she broke in; and now he did not need to look to know that her lips were trembling pitifully.

"I did keep it."

She dropped quickly on the step beside him and a sympathetic hand crept into his.

"You kept it until the unhappy day when you gave it to my father, and he—and he threw it away." She was crying softly, but his attempt to comfort her was almost mechanical.

"Don't cry about the money. It had the devil's thumb-prints on it, and he merely claimed his own and got it. Then he went on as one determined to leave nothing untold. 'Cortwright had bought me, and I served him as only a man in my position could serve him. I became a promoter, a 'booster,' with the others. There have been times when a word from me would have pricked the bubble. I haven't said the word: I am not saying it now. If I should say it I'd lose at a single stroke all that I have been fighting for. And I am not a good loser, Amy."

For once the keen, apprehending perception failed.

"I don't understand," she said, speaking as if she were groping in thick darkness. "I mean I don't understand the motive that could—"

He turned to her in dumb astonishment. "I thought I had been making it plain as I went along. You wanted something—you needed it—therefore it must be purchased for you. And the curious part of the besetment is that I have known all along that I was killing your love for me. If it wasn't quite dead before it will die now—now that I have told you how I am flinging the last vestiges of uprightness and honor to the winds."

"But how?" she queried. "You haven't told me."

"With the dam completed before congress could intervene, Mirapolis would, of course, be quite dead and ready for its funeral. But if the Cortwright people industriously insist that the spending of another million or two of government money is only another plum for the city and its merchants and industries, that notwithstanding the renewed activities, the work will still stop short of completion and the city will be saved by legislative enactment. The innocent sheep may be made to bleed again and the wolves will escape."

She shuddered and drew a little apart from him on the log step.

"But your part in this horrible plot, Victor?" she asked.

"It is as simple as it is despicable. In the first place, I am to set the situation before the department in such a light as to make it clearly a matter of public policy to take advantage of the present Mirapolis crisis by pushing the work vigorously to a conclusion."

After this turning on the spigot of plenty, I am expected to crowd the pay rolls and at the same time to hold back on the actual progress of the work. That is all—except that I am to keep my mouth shut."

"But you can't, you can't!" she cried. Then, in a passionate outburst: "If you should do such a thing as that, it wouldn't kill my love—I can't say that any more; but it would kill me—I shouldn't want to live!"

He looked around at her curiously, as if he were holding her at arm's length.

"Shall I do what you would have me do, Amy? Or shall I do what is best for you?" The opposing queries were as impersonal as the arm's-length gaze.

"Perhaps I might be able to patch up the ideals and stand them on their feet again—and you would pay the penalty all your life in poverty and privation in hopes wrecked and ruined, and I with my hands tied. (That is one horn of the dilemma, and the other is—)

"Let me tell you, Amy, it is worse than your worst fears. They will strip your father of the last thing he has on earth and bring him out in debt to them. There is one chance, and only one, so far as I can see. Let me go on as I have begun and I can pull him out."

The tears had burned out of the steadfast eyes which were resting, with the shining soul looking out through them, upon the crimsoning snow peaks of the distant Timanyonia.

"How little you know the real love!"

"How is the Line Tonight, Pretty Clear?"

she said slowly. "It neither weighs nor measures, nor needs to; it writes its own law in the heart, and that law can make no compromise with evil. It has but one requirement—the best good of the beloved. If the way to that end lies through sacrifice—if it asks for the life itself—so let it be. If you knew this, Victor, you would know that I would gladly lose all—the mine, my father's share of the reward for the years of toil, even my brother's better chance for reformation—and count myself happy in having found a love that was too great to do evil that good might come."

He got up stiffly and helped her to her feet and together they stood looking down upon the city of the plains, lying now under the curved, sunset shadow cast by the mighty, impending sweep of the great dam.

"I don't know," he said after a time. "Once, as I told you a few weeks ago, the best there was in me would have leaped up to climb the heights with you. But I've gone far since the going began. I am not sure that I could find my way back if I should try. Let's go down. I mustn't keep you out on the mountain after dark. I haven't happened to meet her, but I suppose there is a Mrs. Grundy, even in Gomorrah."

She acquiesced in silence and they made the descent of the steep trail and walked across in the growing dusk from the foot of Chigirango to the succored villa in the suburb, miners of speech, since there were no deeper depths to which the spoken word could plunge. But at the villa steps Brouillard took the girl in his arms and kissed her.

"Put me out of your mind and heart if you can," he said tenderly, repeating the words which he had once sent across the distances to her in another moment of despair, and before she could answer he was gone.

Monsieur Poudrecault Bongras, roly-poly, smiling and roached and waxed to a broad burlesque of second-empire floridness, looked in vain among his dinner guests that evening for the chief of the reclamation service, and Brouillard's absence held a small disappointment for the Frenchman. Rumor, the rumor which was never quiet and which could never be traced conclusively to its source, was again busy with exciting hints of a new era of prosperity about to dawn, and Bongras had hoped to drop his own little plummet of inquiry into the reclamation service chief.

The chance did not materialize. The lights in a certain upper office in the Niquola building were still turned on long after M. Poudrecault had given up the hope of the deep-sea sounding for that night. Some time after the lobby crowd had melted, and before the lower avenue had begun to order small-hour suppers of Bongras, the two high windows in the Niquola building went dark and a few minutes later the man who had spent half the night tramping the floor or sitting with his head in his hands at the desk in the upper room came out of the street archway and walked briskly to the telegraph office across the plaza.

"How is the line tonight, Sanford—pretty clear?" he asked of the night manager, killing time while the sleepy night receiving clerk was making his third attempt to count the words in the closely-written, two-page government cipher.

"Nothing doing; a little A P stuff drizzling in now and then," said the manager, adding: "But that's like the poor—always with us."

"All right; there is no particular rush about this matter of mine, just so it is sure to be in the secretary's hands at the opening of business in the morning. But be careful that it goes straight—you'd better have it checked back before it is put on the through wire from Denver."

"Sure, Mr. Brouillard. What you say in this little old shack goes as it lays. We'll look out and not bull your message. Good night."

CONNELLSVILLE BREWERY.

"How is the line tonight, Sanford—pretty clear?" he asked of the night manager, killing time while the sleepy night receiving clerk was making his third attempt to count the words in the closely-written, two-page government cipher.

"Nothing doing; a little A P stuff drizzling in now and then," said the manager, adding: "But that's like the poor—always with us."

"All right; there is no particular rush about this matter of mine, just so it is sure to be in the secretary's hands at the opening of business in the morning. But be careful that it goes straight—you'd better have it checked back before it is put on the through wire from Denver."

"Sure, Mr. Brouillard. What you say in this little old shack goes as it lays. We'll look out and not bull your message. Good night."

MODERN "RIP" RETURNS

Stoystown Man Appears After Absence of 10 Years.

Special to The Courier.

STOYSTOWN, June 14—Like a modern Rip Van Winkle, Isaac Dilbert, who left his home here 46 years ago, has returned. The owner of property worth close to $1,000,000, he finds most of his relatives and friends dead. At the age of 13 he went as a drummer boy into the Civil War. A few years after the end of the war he left, for the West. His mother and sister waited in vain for word of him. Forty years ago the sister died. Ten years ago the mother, destitute, applied for a pension. There was no proof of death, and it was necessary that a special bill be passed in Congress awarding her a pension. She lived only a year after this.

Mr. Dilbert's return was unheralded and he came as one from the grave. Only a few old residents knew him. Since his departure Mr. Dilbert traveled over the greater portion of the globe. He is owner of Alaskan gold properties.

STORK IS ACTIVE.

It Leaves Two Boys in as Many Connellsville Homes.

On Sunday morning an eight pound boy arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Schroyer of South Connellsville. There is now a boy and a girl in the Schroyer family.

CORNELL LOSES A MASTER COACH IN CHAS. E. COURTNEY

Break in Trio of Advisers Who Kept Red and White to Fore.

HE MADE ROWING HISTORY

Under Courtney's tutelage Cornell won 13 of the 21 "Hardy" Races at Poughkeepsie, 12 Out of 20 Freshman Tests and 10 Out of 15 Four-

By Associated Press

NEW YORK, June 13.—The retirement of Charles E. Courtney, for many years crew coach at Cornell University, marks an epoch in American Intercollegiate rowing and the first break in the trio of coaches who made Cornell victorious in recent years on water, track and gridiron. No coach ever achieved greater fame in his chosen line of athletic instruction or development, winning combinations with greater frequency and consistency than Courtney. While he will still be available in an advisory capacity and has a worthy successor in John Hoyle, should the Cornell authorities decide to continue the latter in his present capacity, the death of all crew mentors has hung up his coaching megaphone for the last time.

Courtney's retirement was not entirely unexpected for the "Old Man," as he has been affectionately termed at Ithaca for some years, has been in poor health since he sustained a fractured skull on June 12, 1915. The accident occurred while he was en route to Poughkeepsie with the Cornell crew and was caused by Courtney being thrown violently against a berth following a turn of the fast traveling train. The Cornell coach has been under the care of physicians ever since and while his condition has improved to some extent the word has gone forth that he must give up further coaching and spend the rest of his life quietly.

Born in 1845, Courtney is in his sixty-eighth year and after his many seasons of competition as an amateur and professional oarsman and his later reign as coach at Cornell, his friends and medical advisers feel that he has richly earned the quiet and retirement which he requires. Thanks to the generosity of the Cornell alumni and undergraduates, Courtney is removed from any financial worries or cares. He owns outright a handsome home and grounds at Ithaca, overlooking Cayuga Lake, the gift of Cornell men, in addition to a comfortable competency.

Since the formation of the Intercollegiate Rowing Association in 1895, Cornell has competed in every one of the twenty-one four-mile championship races, winning thirteen, finishing second four times and third four times. In the twenty years of freshman races Cornell has won twelve firsts; five seconds; two thirds and one fifth. During the fifteen years of variety four racing the Ithaca combinations won ten firsts; three seconds; one third and one fourth. Since the introduction of the junior eight race in 1911 the Cornell rowers and crews have captured half events. Courtney has always been a wonderful judge of rowing material even in the rough and almost stilet and severe at all times, would spend hours with embryo oarsmen who showed promise and a desire to learn the art of sweep swinging. He would never brook interference from any quarter during the rowing season and never forgive those candidates who broke training. Time and again Courtney has thrown a man or a whole crew out of the shell because they violated his rules and they never came back. In rowing he was an autocrat and martinet but he produced results; had the support of the faculty, alumni and student body at Cornell and it will be hard to replace the "Old Man" in the affections of those connected with the Ithaca university or in his role as a coaching wizard.

FACTORS TO PLAY.

Iron Works and Car Company Men Will Clash on the West Side.

The Connellsville Iron Works will play the Connellsville Machine & Car Company this evening at Columbia Field at 5:30 o'clock. The Iron Works has a strong team in the field this year but the C. The Superintendents were defeated last evening at Fayette Field, 10-1.

THAT PAY ENVELOPE.

Every Working Man and Woman Should Plan to Save Money.

When that pay envelope comes in, there will be a little more money than usual, because wages are high. The Citizens National Bank suggests that part of the pay should be saved for a time, when the pay may be less or may be stopped. This Bank will help you. It is at 135 N. Pittsburgh street.

HERE'S A CHEW THAT IS A CHEW

"American Navy" is Rich in Quality and Fruity in Flavor

TASTIEST TOBACCO MADE

Do you chew tobacco? If you don't you're missing a lot of wholesome enjoyment and healthful satisfaction. If you do, what form of tobacco do you use? A plug is the only chew that perfectly retains all the natural juices of the leaf.

American Navy is a high-grade "scraper" chew in plug form. It's made of the same type of leaf as "scraper," but the leaves used are whole instead of "cuttings."

And being pressed close, the sweet, mellow, fruity flavor of the leaf runs evenly through every last juicy chew of the American Navy plug.

American Navy represents the highest form of plug tobacco production—the very best chew that can be made from rich, ripe tobacco leaf—the last word in tobacco satisfaction.

American Navy is so carefully and painstakingly made that not one drop of the leaf's rich, natural juice escapes from the plug.

American Navy is the money's worth chew—and more! In 5c and 10c cuts. Try it.

PLAN TO ORGANIZE A RIVAL UNION OF MINERS

Large Dissatisfied Element in the Monongahela Valley Rebel Against Their National Officers.

A determined effort to organize a rival union of mine workers in the Monongahela valley is in progress. In spite of the measures taken by the district and national officers to prevent it, a delegate convention was held at Monongahela on Monday in furtherance of the plans of the independent element in the union. It is estimated that 800 men were present at this meeting representing a majority of the miners in the valley.

Resolutions were adopted protesting against the recent instructions of the international officials in ordering the men to return to work and denying the authority or right of the officers of any district to set aside, change or annul any of the provisions of the New York scale agreement, as was done by the officers of District No. 5.

Other resolutions were adopted authorizing the scale committee to get in touch with independent operators with a view to having them sign the New York agreement with the old working conditions was adopted. A motion that a special convention be called in the Labor Temple, Pittsburgh, on or before July 1, to recall the district officials and to elect their successors, and to revise the constitution and to formulate a new wage scale was also carried.

A number of miners in the Pittsburgh and other sections of the district have resumed operations pending an adjustment of the differences, but in the Monongahela valley the radical element is predominant and few except some of the smaller independent operators, are in operation. Apparently the larger operators are indifferent to the attitude of the rebellious wing of the union. The Pittsburgh Coal Company has taken no steps in being about a settlement with its employees. Instead, it has increased the scope of its operations in West Virginia and is taking care of its southern trade from its recently established shipping station at Huntington, W. Va. The Vesta Coal Company, a subsidiary of the Jones & Laughlin Steel Company, whose large mines at California and Fredericktown are idle, is buying coal in the open market to provide for its present needs.
